3. The Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women recognize the importance of ensuring access to safe drinking water and sanitation in progressively realizing the rights to the highest attainable standard of health and adequate living conditions. In 1994, the Cairo Programme of Action of the United Nations International Conference on Population and Development stated in Principle 2 "that all individuals have the right to an adequate standard of living for themselves and their families, including adequate food, clothing, housing, water and sanitation". In 2002, the United Nations Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, through its General Comment 15, asserted that access to domestic water supply is a human right.
